

YeeHaw!

The Ramblin' Renegades Ride the Range Again!

So Dear Readers, while we were drinking our Lime Rickies and Lemon Squashes, fanning our brows moist from the exertion of looking for that darn remote...Well for pity sake we needed to cool down after the "Fearless Fourteen " shot a fun match directed by Jack Diamond! Meanwhile, some of our Pardos were driving South to bring long distance glory to our fine club. They are forever to be known as the "Sweaty Six". They faced down that burning and relentless sun and prevailed Victorious!

A parched Grubstake Charlie pinned this eyewitness account,

"Hobbs is, I suspect, Spanish (or maybe some local Indian language) for "hotter than hades". Hot does not describe it. While Railhead was held in a lave rock quarry and quite toasty, Hobbs is on an old airport runway (with dirt for berms added). Lots and lots of thermal mass and 103 degree heat. Although to be fair, it was easy to push our carts. We were served an excellent barbeque lunch Saturday and the Hobbs club was great."

(Just a wandering thought Dear Reader, how is it that SASS folks can digest spicy greasy bar-b-que under the blaze of an August sun and live to shoot another day! Lesser mortals would be looking for the Roloids!)

And kudos to our lovely Texas Tiger who somehow keeps her suede fringes from flaming out! How does she do it?
